

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A rider signal is transmitted over programming signal. The rider signal is stored in a rider buffer and includes merchandise ordering data. When a user wishes to order the merchandise, the system establish a channel of communication with an ordering center
5 and places an order according to the data in the rider buffer. The system is particularly useful for implementation in car audio systems and personal computers.